

Celebrate Pharmacy Buyer Day!

October 21, 2022

“Our small community hospital setting is dedicated to serving our neighbors. I have also developed relationships with other hospital buyers in our area to support each other during challenging times, such as the COVID pandemic. At the NPPA Conferences, I enjoy speaking with drug reps and finding out about other services that are available for which you wouldn’t normally find out about during your routine workday.”

“I love working with all of the departments in the hospital and getting to know employees. It really helps to have a good relationship with everyone. Attending the NPPA Conference helps in networking with other Buyers (and also the Vendors), and realizing that we all are in the same boat. It really refreshes you and go back with new tools to do your job.”

“In today’s economy and in the face of an all-time high rate of shortages and backorders, it gives Ginger great job satisfaction to provide patients entrusting their care in our facility with the medications they need to feel optimal, regardless of their diagnosis or prognosis. Ginger’s co-worker notes: She is a phenomenal employee, technician, purchaser, whatever job title you wish to assign her. She is on task, on point, and on time with the deliverables. What we could do with a Pharmacy Department full of Gingers!”
